

Americas First Female President...2016?

It is just a matter of time an American female will, of necessity, be elected President of these magnificent United States of America. Women have been an integral and essential segment of our people since 1608, yet not one has ever been considered worthy of the high honor of serving as our Chief Executive. The remainder of the world has seen fit to choose a female to serve as their head of Government at least fifty-seven times. The American woman has, through experience, observation and that innate quality, Motherhood, acquired the optimum skills and strength of character to serve them and the county well and honestly. Men have proved just the opposite in the years since 1787 when our Constitutional Republic was born. Forty-four administrations and forty-three Presidents later, we find the government uncooperative, unwilling to take time to solve all our problems. We are some sixteen trillion dollars in debt and spending more then we earn. The male-dominated political milieu has proved to be selfish, party-oriented, factional to the point of being extra or even anti-Constitutional Woodrow Wilson, Franklin Roosevelt and Barack Obama being cases in point. All three took courses of action that may have well been considered treasonous.
