

Universal Warrior Arts System

The Universal Warrior Arts System (also known as the U.W.A. System) was founded by Grandmaster Austin Wright, Sr. He introduced this system to the Martial Arts World on September 27, 1998.

The concepts, principles and philosophy of the U.W.A. System were strongly influenced by HANSHI Wrights Sensei (Teacher) and father HANSHI (Master) Dennis Austin Wright Sr. The U.W.A. System was created so that Karate Kas (Students) would learn a variety of Martial Arts disciplines in one American Made Self-Defense System. The idea of having an American-Made Self-Defense System was not a new martial arts concept. Shihan Wright incorporates all that he studies into a constantly evolving Art (U.W.A.) that will continue to progress and be competitive. Grandmaster Wright had a combined Martial Arts vision for America Martial Arts World. He dreamed of pursuing his vision, believing it was his duty to continue the Wrights family legacy.

In spite of numerous attempts by the opposition to stop him and his Sensei (Father), Shihan Wrights dream became a reality. Courage and confidence is an ingredient that all champions possess. Shihan Wright knows how to win and coach students to Grand National Championships and World International Championships.
