

Iron Troikas: The New Threat from the East

There has been widespread discussion of Russias efforts to exploit its energy assets to influence developments in Ukraine; specifically, to put pressure on the leaders of the Orange Revolution who have adopted a Western orientation, rather than one toward the EastRussia. The author explains how the Russian leadership has exploited its energy assets to advance its security interests in the vital East Baltic Sea Region, particularly Poland and the Baltic countries. This triad of power is comprised of former members of the military and security servicethe siloviki; economic warlords, members of organized crime, and rogue military personnel; and local elites in Poland and the Baltic countries who have advanced Russias security interests in the region. The author provides recommendations on how this can be addressed by the U.S. military and the EBSR defense establishments.
