

Autumn Recovery

Autumn Recovery is a literary fiction, narrated by seventeen-year-old Evelyn Padenski, a teenage girl with a risky habit of drug abuse. Ever since Evelyn was a young girl, she experienced feelings of shame, fear, insecurity, and anger unsure of what caused these unpleasant emotions. By means of numbing herself from the internal pain, she used substances to combat her feelings from the past and present, as well as the bleak and hopeless future that she saw ahead of her. In Evelyn's sophomore year of high school, her life begins to spiral downwards until she hits rock bottom. She warily accepts that she is reliant on the drugs and gets diagnosed with a mental illness by a psychiatrist. Confused, lost and scared, Evelyn's only beacon of hope is a young man who struggles with his own addictions, and the strength she must find within herself to grasp onto the ledge of recovery.
