Turner believed that light was the emanation of Gods spirit and painted his later works as an expression of that spirituality. At his death, Turner left a large fortune that he hoped would support older artists. He previously designed and planned an almshouse for them at Twickenham with a gallery for his works. Most of his dying wishes were not honored.NOTABLE WORKS:The Grand Canal; Rain, Steam and Speed-The Great Western Railway; The Burning of the Houses of Parliament, The Slave Ship.
